"Gross-Deutsch" (pro-Greater-Germany) and became a Nazi. His wife, Violette, is very energetic too and shares her mother's political sentiments. Both ladies influenced him and he became long before the Anschluss, a Nazi, believing the slogans, even if he didn't understand them. As a lawyer he represents members of the Nazi Party of Baden near Vienna. His children had a German governess. He won't change his political mind.

- Resume: Gustav (Gusti) Baron Suttner could have been a leading member

27) ~~Almanach de Gorn~~

24) German and probably French

Resume: Gustav (Gusti) Baron Suttner could have been a leading member in the Christian (catholic) farmer's party, especially in the party's Lower-Austria branch. This party was catholic, pro-Austria, pro-Government and had no pro-German (or pro-Nazi) tendencies. He is considered an expert farmer (cultivation, forest, cattle-breeding) has very close contact with the Roman Catholic Church in Lower Austria, the abbots from Geras and from Retz as well, as the priests of the whole diocese being his friends and often his guests. He was chosen to represent the party several times in Vienna and in different towns of Lower-Austria.

His mother was of Jewish origin. This fact, his engagement in the absolutely pro-Austrian party and being the son of a well-known Austrian family (his aunt Baronin Bertha Suttner, the pacifist) caused him some difficulties with the Nazis and stopped his political career.

Suttner

-3-

FD-1177

Reports about General Ideas in catholic church circles as well as the former and forming situation of Lower and Upper Austria can be obtained through Baron Suttner. He will give a possibilistic report, but realistic and reliable.

He is certainly not pro-Nazi, or even pro-German. In the first place he is pro-Austria, in the second, pro-Italies.

of industries into Austria, depends on increased or lowered position of his own company, which was always (until 1938) considered as monopol-industry for the old Austria-Hungary territory. A lowered position Bruno Urban will consider as an offence but an increased position of his industry, he will accept as due to his factories.

Bruno Urban has to be considered, if one needs men of influence in the Iron and Steel Industry of Austria.

Catholic.

- 9) About 1900, married Prince Windischgraetz, former cavalry officer in the Austrian Hungarian army. She has four children: Franz Joseph, Ernst, Rudolf, Felicitas. The eldest son, now about forty years old was a difficult child. He became a friend of Prince Starhemberg and a member of the Heimwehr. Now lives somewhere in Europe, probably in Austria. Ernst, a gifted painter, is married and probably lives in Austria. He was a wine merchant for some time with his brother, Franz Joseph. Rudolf, a mechanic, had a mortal accident while riding his motorcycle at the age of twenty. Felicitas (nickname Fee) after graduating from the Gymnasium finished her education in a Belgian convent in Bruegge and married a Catholic Belgian count. She is about 32 and probably lives in Belgium. Princess Elisabeth was divorced from her husband
